

Sample of Our Work

Salish Kootenai College, Montana

Salish Kootenai College is located in the center of the Flathead Reservation in Western Montana. Accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities, the college leadership approached Global Spark to work in areas of sustainable development, curriculum development (for the preservation of culture, language, and history), and resource development.

Zayed University and Dubai Women's College, United Arab Emirates

As part of an ongoing partnership involving UAE women, Global Spark is working with Abu Dhabi and Dubai universities in the Women as Global Leaders initiative. We have created and delivered curriculum and community building in areas of sustainability, leadership, and strategic communication for small business owners.

New High School Model, China

Teams of U.S. educators are creating new high educational prototypes in Hangzhou and other areas. These institutions recruit the best and brightest students hoping for top-tier U.S. university acceptance and Global Spark contributed to models that meet WASC accreditation, IB curriculum standards, and the blessing of the Chinese government.

Community Connections, Brockton, Massachusetts

Building off an existing collaboration between Bridgewater State University and its neighboring city, this project involves local and regional nonprofit organizations in southeastern Massachusetts. Global Spark conducts workshops and other information-sharing sessions about public participation, resources, and communication including social media.
